Andy – Is there any other avenue to comment on this subject than to attend this hearing?

I support Steve Wright's position that we want to preserve our power for the best possible community return, and to keep rates low. I do not believe that giving away cheap power to these users is the best way to do that. Quincy has not become a mecca for the firms that have built data centers there, and I seriously doubt that Wenatchee will become the entrepreneurial hub as advertised if we allow these uses. At least Quincy ended up with some property tax revenue. I'm thinking we are not even going to get that. I vote to adopt the high rate. You may need to grandfather some of these uses that are already here in, but close the door quick after that.

Thanks for the opportunity to comment.
