Thank you Mr. Wendell.

I will be at your meeting for sure. Every day I see articles regarding unsafe levels of EMF's, inaccurate billing, or house fires directly related to these meters. In fact there was just a study completed in the Netherlands showing billing inaccuracies of up to 583%. If there are hundreds of supporting testimonies, there must be thousands opposed. Hopefully, the Commissioners will choose to act in a manner that is in the best interest of the consumer and not in support of some unsafe technology. I suggest you look at www.stopsmartmeters.org. And there are many more web sites as well.

Michael,

Thank you for your comments. I've been active over the last seven years researching the Advanced Metering Technology and how this technology can benefit our customers and our ability to deliver safe, reliable and low cost power. With over 50 Million meters deployed nation wide, the advanced meter industry has done a lot in the way of responding to health, security and data privacy concerns. A quick google search will yield hundreds of testimonies and opinion on the health of RF and smart meters. Providing our communities and customers factual based decisions is a value of ours. In an effort to be open and transparent about what facts we've learned about this technology, what the benefits are and how we aspire to use it- we've developed a wide spectrum of community meetings including two in your area.

Please join us so we may further the discussion.

No disrespect meant to you personally Suzanne, but the moron that came up with this idea probably considers breakfast cereal and Fritos to be an optimal diet. The health ramifications to these meters are devastating. Having one of those things on your home quadruples (if not more) the amount of EMF one is getting... and multiply that by 000's when they are all over a community...not to mention the proven inaccuracies in billing elsewhere in the country. One would think that health would be considered over the ability to "drive by" and take a reading.
