

Wenatchee World

51 mins · *

Companies that lease space to “crypto-currency miners” say the Chelan County PUD’s proposed new rate for high-intensity energy users would force them to relocate to surrounding counties, collectively taking about 50 family-wage jobs with them.

(full story at <http://wwrld.us/bitcoinerrates>)

Bitcoiners say proposed new power rate would break them

WENATCHEEWORLD.COM

Like

Comment

Share

Kramer Christensen likes this.

Top Comments ▾

Write a comment...

Lisa Warren Is bit coin mining even legal??? I would think it's illegal to make your own currency...how does that work???

Like · Reply · 43 mins · Edited

Craig Lukens Guess they thought using the public's power at a discounted rate would work in their business plan?

Like · Reply · 36 mins

Kevin Allen My gut tells me that bit coin mining is not something I want our cheap and premium power used for. No thank you.

Like · Reply · 30 mins

Josiah Langlois It is tax free, anonymous, and legal... However it is a get rich quick scheme that could evaporate if the market crashes

Like · Reply · 5 mins · Edited

Milo Klanke Good.

Like · Reply · 44 mins

Write a comment...